The 1056B01s I was sent wont work with my cable boxes.Thank you, TimeWarner. You had to slam those buttons down hard to make them work. After 3 years, the remote is useless. No, TimeWarner, its not the batteries, its your stupid, wornout remote. TimeWarner says, bring your old remote down to the equipment exchange office, stand in line for an unknown amount of time, and we will give you a different, old remote. No thank you TimeWarner. This remote works beautifully. I assume we will continue to pay for a remote that does not work, but what do you expect from a monopolyOddly, I got 2 remotes, and the other one was very different.The remote simply will not program to operate the cisco cable box. When I made the purchase I got the impression that it would auto set to the box and all I had to do would be to program it to the tv and other devices.

Whitt 5.0 out of 5 stars This is a no-brainer for anyone who has Time Warner. The remote codes can be found by Google. However, there are TONS of remotes that look identical or similar to this that DO NOT work with Time Warner.This one, of course did work with Time Warner. So there was the hassle of returning the other one from a different seller.The old remote had numbers wearing off and I had to push really hard to get the buttons to register. The new remote came in and is now working like a dream. It took some doing to program the remote. I was able to program my TV just fine but for some reason it wasn't allowing me to program the cable box. It turns out that the button for cable box comes prelocked. You have to unlock the cable button before you can program it.I got her this as a surprise last Christmas and not only did it work right off the bat, it is still working this day. I am so happy we dont have to struggle like crazy just to change the channel anymore!If you have a DVR may not work. Be sure to check. Please try again.
